International Enrolment Strategy, Recruitment Coordination and Growth Partnership

1. Initial Conversation

British Enrolment Partners (“BEP”) is pleased to present this proposal to Bede’s for an outsourced, integrated international enrolment function designed to help Bede’s recruit the right international pupils, in the right markets, with the right level of support and accountability.

Bede’s is already a strong proposition with well-established recruitment partnerships worldwide and an in-house team of admissions & marketing colleagues. During our initial meeting on the 5th August discussions were had around recruitment challenges, boarding capacity, international recruitment targets and the exciting future expansion at Bede’s, notably boarding entrance in Year’s 7 & 8 from September 2027. Furthermore, the recent inclusion of termly immersion programmes is likely to be of interest to recruitment partners across the markets.

We also discussed strengthening opportunities to recruit from markets in China & Hong Kong where Bede’s numbers have declined and scope for activity in regions such as South East Asia, South America & Africa. During the meeting we introduced BEP’s presence within strategic markets and territories and advised on our expanding network of over 700 agency representatives and school partners highlighting the benefits of BEP in terms of market exposure. Our understanding is that Bede’s would like to explore opportunities with British Enrolment Partners to scaffold the existing international student recruitment function.

British Enrolment Partners recognizes that Bede’s does not need inventing for the international market; it is a school whose strengths now need to be translated into a more coordinated, strategic and higher-converting enrolment function. International recruitment has outgrown the old model of occasional fairs, fragmented agent relationships and reactive admissions follow-up. It is now a strategic commercial function that demands consistent market development, family nurturing, partner management and pipeline visibility and BEP would like to collaborate with Bede’s in scaffolding the student recruitment operation to enhance recruitment and to continue to broaden student diversity and concentrate efforts in defined regions.

2. The Models: Fixed Retainer v Performance Partnership

Fixed Retainer The Fixed Retainer model is best suited to a school with strong existing demand, clear market appeal, and an ambition to expand into new territories and develop a wider international network.

Under this model, BEP would act as an extension of Bede’s existing international recruitment team, supported by our central team in the UK and regional teams in Thailand and China, with plans to establish a Latin American office in the near future.

We would not replace Bede’s admissions authority or ask the school to give up trusted agent relationships. Instead, we would agree a clear and defined process aligned with Bede’s priorities, covering agent network development, agent management, lead generation, family liaison, application support, offer conversion and pre-arrival follow-up.

All activity would remain focused on pupil fit, nationality balance and long-term retention.

There would be no operational fee or enrolment-based charge, only a fixed monthly fee of £4,800 plus VAT. As well as offering the greatest flexibility, the Fixed Retainer may also prove to be the more economical option.

Performance Partnership The Performance Partnership offers Bede’s a no-upfront-cost model, with payment linked to successful enrolments.

Under this model, BEP would carry the initial cost and commercial risk of developing new markets and agent relationships. In return, BEP would receive a 15% operational service fee for each year of a student's enrolment.

As BEP would be making this investment without a retainer, we would need clearly defined responsibility for the markets and channels we are appointed to develop, particularly where we are establishing Bede's presence from the ground up.

Where an agent is involved, the agent's commission would remain entirely separate from BEP's operational service fee. BEP would collect the commission on behalf of the relevant agent and pass it on in full. BEP would not retain any part of the agent commission or determine the commission structure.

3. Why This Matters for Bede's

Bede's already has many of the ingredients international families are looking for. It also has a tangible international base on which to build, with a diverse overseas boarding community and an outstanding academic & sporting reputation. BEP recognizes the commitment that Bede's is making in Asia to recruit students that want to excel academically and reach their potential in football. BEP can further support this through our network of specialist agents and links with football academies in China.

As the international student recruitment landscape continues to change, so must connectivity with agency partners and regular outreach to new partners. With over 700 active agents worldwide, BEP in-country colleagues can rapidly begin to expand your agency network and forge new relationships for the future.

Bede's would remain in control of the parts that should remain school-owned: admissions standards and decisions; scholarship and bursary decisions; pastoral oversight and boarding care; final offer approval; and the school's relationships on the ground with joining families. In short: BEP runs the business development and coordination layers; Bede's retains control of the school international admissions itself.

What Bede's Gains

- A stronger and more consistent international pipeline.
- An extensive and robust international partner network.
- An 'always on' international recruitment function & greater in-country exposure in select markets.
- Better conversion from enquiry to application and from offer to enrolment.
- More strategic market development, with clearer control over geography, profile and nationality balance.
- Better use of the school's internal team by removing the in-market grind and follow-up burden.
- Greater visibility and control over international performance.

4. Recommendation and Next Steps

Should Bede's wish to proceed, we suggest the following next steps:

- Confirm the preferred partnership model.
- Jointly agree the target markets, implementation roadmap and reporting framework.
- Deliver comprehensive training for the BEP recruitment team, including in-person sessions for our UK staff and online training for our overseas teams, ensuring everyone has a thorough understanding of Bede's offering, culture and admissions process.

- Work closely with your marketing team to obtain the necessary marketing materials and develop a coordinated recruitment and marketing plan for the agreed markets.
- We are genuinely excited by the opportunity to work together and believe BEP can make a meaningful contribution to expanding Bede's international presence.
