Subject: RE: Apologies and in person meeting next Tuesday?

Hi Suzanne

Thanks for your e-mail yesterday and for taking the time to discuss the proposal further with your colleagues. I'm delighted to hear that, following your internal discussions, the Fixed Retainer Partnership model is St Clare's preference. This model offers St Clare's the greatest flexibility, focusing recruitment activities on markets that can add real value such as Singapore, Hong Kong, Mainland China & Thailand.

We recognise that St Clare's wants to develop markets in Asia, however one of the strengths of the Fixed Retainer model is its flexibility. Rather than being constrained to specific recruitment activities, it enables our team to promote across a variety of markets. This means that St Clare's would also benefit from the expertise and established relationships of our team overseeing recruitment in Europe and Latin America, allowing us to support recruitment activity where appropriate and where there is potential to complement your existing efforts. This would not detract from the priority of expansion throughout Asian markets which we understand offers the greatest added value.

To ensure that our work enhances, rather than duplicates, your current activity, it would be extremely helpful if you could share a list of your existing school relationships in China & South Korea. This will enable us to avoid approaching schools with which you already have established relationships and instead focus our efforts on identifying, developing and nurturing new partnerships such as other schools that no doubt will be interested in Summer camp or short courses.

We fully recognise that St Clare's has been providing a world-class education to international students for more than 70 years and has built an outstanding international reputation. Your academic outcomes, with more than 95% of students progressing to their first-choice university, are testament to the quality of education and student support that the College provides. Our objective is to build upon this strong foundation by introducing St Clare's to carefully selected educational agents and potential school partners that reflect your academic reputation and international standing. I would also like to reassure you regarding your comments about market positioning. As a founding partner of British Enrolment Partners, St Clare's would form part of a carefully curated portfolio of schools that is representative across the independent school's sector. Our intention is to work with a small number of complementary schools, each offering distinct strengths, ensuring that every partner benefits from appropriate representation while maintaining its individual identity and market positioning.

I will begin preparing the implementation roadmap and reporting framework discussed within the proposal, which will provide further clarity on how the partnership would be delivered and measured. With regards to the NDA, we can put this in place, and I would be pleased to arrange a convenient time to discuss agency onboarding. To clarify regarding agency commission payments, BEP would not retain any part of the agent commission or determine the commission structure.

Please take your time to carefully consider which markets should be prioritised. If it would be helpful to discuss any markets, opportunities, or approaches as part of that process, I would be very happy to arrange a call at your convenience.

I look forward to continuing our discussions and exploring how we can build a successful long-term partnership together.

Kindest regards

John

Subject: RE: Apologies and in person meeting next Tuesday?

Dear Ying,

Thank you for your time this week. I appreciate the thought you gave to addressing the points we raised, and thank you for sending through the detailed proposal.

Having had the opportunity to discuss the proposal further internally, we believe the Fixed Retainer Performance Partnership model is the option that we would like to consider further.

As discussed, our priority is to grow in markets where we currently have limited reach or representation, particularly across parts of Asia. Any arrangement would therefore need clearly defined territories and responsibilities that complement, rather than duplicate, the work already being undertaken by our in-house Student Recruitment Managers and our established agent network. We would also need to establish an effective way of working together, particularly as we already have well-established relationships with a number of IB schools in China and South Korea that recruit students to our Summer School and Short Courses.

I do remain cautious about including Europe and Latin America within the scope of the proposal at this stage. We already have strong recruitment and well-established partnerships across these regions, so I believe the initial focus should be on Asia, where there is the greatest opportunity to add value.

I'd like to take a few days to consider which markets should be prioritised. Would you be able to develop the implementation roadmap and reporting framework outlined in your proposal?

I also have a couple of additional points for us to discuss:

- Would it be sensible to put an NDA in place at this stage?
- We would like reassurance that St Clare's would be represented alongside a portfolio of schools that are aligned with our market positioning.
- We should also discuss how relationships with newly appointed agents would operate, including the commission structure you would envisage.

Thank you again for your time and for the constructive discussions. I look forward to hearing from you.

With best wishes
Suzanne

Dear Duncan,

Thank you once again for taking the time to meet with us on Tuesday. It was a pleasure to visit St Clare's, learn more about the College and gain a deeper understanding of your ambitions for developing the Asian market.

I found our discussion extremely constructive and appreciated your openness in sharing both your priorities and the areas where you believe BEP can add value. Having reflected on our meeting, I have attached a summary of our understanding of the opportunity and how we believe a partnership could work in practice.

We hope the summary accurately reflects our discussion and provides a helpful basis for considering the next steps.

Best,
Ying

Subject: RE: Apologies and in person meeting next Tuesday?

Good afternoon Duncan,

Thank you for your thoughtful email and for explaining so clearly the importance of St Clare's relationships with its agents, students and families.

We fully recognise that these relationships are central to the College's success, and we would not seek to replace or take control of them. The proposal we shared was intended as a starting point, and we are very open to developing a more focused arrangement around the opportunities you have identified in Asia and other markets where St Clare's would like to strengthen its presence.

From your email, we understand that the most valuable role for BEP would be to help St Clare's build a stronger presence in selected Asian market, develop new agent and partner relationships, and act as a knowledgeable recruitment team for the College.

We also recognise that St Clare's already has a strong presence in Europe. Any existing agents and relationships could be listed and protected at the outset. BEP could then focus on developing additional relationships outside that established network, including within European markets where our networks do not overlap.

There are two possible ways in which this could operate:

Fixed Retainer Partnership

BEP would support St Clare's across a broad range of agreed markets for a service charge of £4,800 plus VAT per month.

This model offers maximum flexibility. St Clare's would retain its existing agents and could continue developing relationships independently, while BEP builds additional opportunities across Asia, Latin America, Europe and other agreed markets.

Performance Partnership

Alternatively, we would be happy to consider a Performance Partnership with no monthly retainer or upfront financial commitment from St Clare's.

Under this model, BEP would carry the initial cost and risk of developing new markets and agency relationships and would receive a 15% operational service fee for the duration of each student's enrolment, where that student was successfully recruited through the BEP function. As BEP would be making this investment without a retainer, we would need defined responsibility for the markets and channels we are appointed to develop. In practice, this would mean agreeing regional exclusivity in markets where BEP is establishing a presence for St Clare's from the ground up, particularly in Asia.

Where an agent is involved, the agent's commission would remain separate from BEP's operational service fee. BEP would collect the commission on behalf of the relevant agent and pass it to the agent in full. BEP does not retain any part of the agent commission or determine the commission level.

In simple terms, the Fixed Retainer Partnership provides wider market coverage and greater flexibility, while the Performance Partnership removes the upfront commitment but requires BEP to have defined responsibility for the new markets in which it is carrying the investment and risk.

Neither approach requires St Clare's to relinquish its existing relationships. The distinction is simply how the investment, flexibility and commercial risk are shared between us.

We are very pleased to confirm our visit at 3.00 pm on Tuesday 4 August. We look forward to learning more about St Clare's and discussing which markets, commercial structure and approach would best support a productive long-term partnership.

Best,
Ying

Subject: RE: Apologies and in person meeting next Tuesday?

Dear Ying,

Thank you for your very positive response and for setting aside time to come and see us on Tuesday 4th August at 3pm. I would very much like to meet with you and your team then, though I do have some points I think we should consider first before confirming the visit on Tuesday, which I will outline in this email.

Thank you for sending through your draft proposal. I need to emphasise, though, that this offers a great deal more than we would want. The success of our school depends on our agency relationships, and on how well we already nurture relationships with parents and students from initial enquiry to arrival, and then throughout their time at the College and long after. That is not something we could give up. Conversion rates are high, there is no issue with retention whatsoever, and word-of-mouth recommendations account for about 50% of our intake – because students and their families get everything they want from their experience here, and go on to recommend us. It is our strong relationship with agents, as well as the quality of our education, that keeps our agents recommending St Clare's to families year on year. Managing the relationships with parents, students and agents is thus very much part of our DNA, and is not something we could realistically change. Ying, you mentioned in our meeting that it was unattractive that we were just running IB for the international market (and that only in Years 11-13), and you are right of course because it is such a niche market – the reality is that we have only been so successful in that because of the quality of our relationships (and our education) which is not something we can give up responsibility for.

What we are looking for instead is to build a presence in the countries where we have never really had a strong presence, particularly in Asia. What attracted us to meet with you was Andrew's initial email about your extensive network of agents and offices in Asia. We believe that if you really understood what we offer, then you would understand how valuable that would be for Asian families and students, and BEP could then be a strong advocate for us in that market. This could then generate a really productive, long-term relationship. I am therefore keen for you to come and meet with us and see St Clare's on Tuesday 4th August at 3 pm. However, our relationship would need to be on a different basis from what is in your draft proposal. Please can you let me know if you are open to that, and whether we can therefore look forward to seeing you next Tuesday?

With best wishes,
Duncan

Hi Gabby,

Thank you very much for your email.

15:00 on the 4th August works perfect for us. Please find attached draft proposal for your information prior to the meeting. Of course we will be more than happy to discuss more in person and adjust the proposal accordingly.

We look forward to meeting with you.

Best,
Ying

Hi Andrew,

I am glad the meeting went well!

Both Duncan and Suzanne are free from 11:30 to 12:30 or 15:00 to 16:30 next Tuesday the 4th of August.

Please let me know if either of those time slots work for you.

Dear Duncan, Suzanne, Gabby,

I hear/think today's call went well. I'm sorry the signal in Cornwall stopped me joining.

Ying, John and I would love to come and perhaps 'bottom out' a few details as to how things could work in person next Tuesday. Would that be possible?

Best wishes,

Andrew
