Hi Matt

Thank you for your response and for taking the time to consider the opportunity following our meeting.

I completely understand your position and appreciate that Westonbirt is already on an exciting journey with its international development. We very much enjoyed meeting with you and learning more about the School's aspirations, and we would certainly be keen to stay in touch.

If you don't mind me asking, I would be very interested to understand whether there was a particular factor that led to the decision not to take things forward at this stage. I completely appreciate that the timing may simply not be right, but any feedback you would be willing to share would be genuinely helpful to us as we continue to develop BEP and our partnerships with schools.

We would be delighted to keep the dialogue open and, where appropriate, share relevant market insight or opportunities that may support Westonbirt's international objectives. Thanks also for the kind invitation — if we are in the Cotswolds, we will certainly take you up on it and come and say hello.

Wishing you and the team every success with the next stage of Westonbirt's international journey. I hope we have the opportunity to work together in the future.

Kindest regards

John

Hi John,

Thank you for your message and follow-up - much appreciated.

We've given it some careful consideration since our meeting last week and, for the time being, don't feel the timing is quite right for us to take things forward just now.

That said, we've really enjoyed getting to know more about BEP and have very much appreciated the information and conversations we've had so far.

We believe we are already at the start of a journey with Westonbirt, and our international aspirations, including strengthening our existing international partnerships and building new ones.

We would be keen to keep in touch and would certainly be open to revisiting things further down the line, should the opportunity arise.

Thank you again, John, and if you, Ying or Andrew are in the Cotswolds, please do drop in and say hello.

All the best,

Matt

Hi Matt

I hope you're well.

I just wanted to follow up following last week's meeting and to see if you've managed to have a conversation regarding BEP.

It would be great to hear any initial thoughts and, if useful, we'd be very happy to meet again to explore the potential markets and opportunities where we might be able to work together.

We're keen to continue the conversation and see where there may be some good opportunities to enhance Westonbirt's international recruitment.

Please do let me know if it would be helpful to arrange a conversation.

Kindest regards

John

Hi Matt & Sam

Thank you once again for taking the time to meet with us yesterday. It was a pleasure learning more about Westonbirt School and discussing your international recruitment objectives.

I hope the meeting provided a useful introduction to British Enrolment Partners and the ways in which we may be able to support your international recruitment strategy. We greatly appreciated the opportunity to learn more about your ambitions and to explore how a partnership could add value.

I understand that you will now be having further internal discussions. In the meantime, should any questions arise or if there is any additional information that would be helpful, please do not hesitate to contact me. I would be very pleased to provide any further information or clarification that may assist your discussions.

Thanks & best wishes

John

Hi Ying, John and Andrew,

Thank you very much for meeting with Sam and I today to discuss BEP and learning more about your international enrolment function. It was interesting to hear your plans and thoughts.

Sam and I will be catching up shortly and will come back to you after this.

In the meantime, and in addition to the BEP PDF we already have, please feel free to send across any supporting information.

All the best,

Matt

Hi John,

Thanks for following up.

I'm copying my colleague @Matt Simmonite, who leads on international recruitment for us. It would be good to get a time in the diary for him to hear a bit more about your offering and whether it could fit with what we're looking to do.

I'll leave you to find a convenient date.

Best wishes,
Sam

Hey Sam,

I hope you and your team have come through this difficult week in reasonable shape. As per my whatsapp, I wanted to drop you a quick note about an international boarding recruitment project I'm now involved in that I mentioned last week.

I've been part of the thinking and positioning behind a new venture that I believe could change how schools approach international recruitment, and how much they get out of their agency networks.

I don't need to tell you how competitive and prized that part of your community has become. Schools across the country are telling me their pipelines have gone sticky, and that converting the agency leads they're handed is harder than it used to be. Nobody's pretending it's easy out there.

Which is why I think there's room for a challenger in international recruitment, in the same way we've seen other core parts of running a school, catering being the obvious one, professionalised and brought into integrated outsourcing.

To cut to the chase: British Enrolment Partners (BEP) launched quietly this week and will run the international enrolment function for a handpicked group of British boarding schools. The markets, the agents, the applications and the in-territory work, handled as one coordinated operation rather than a scatter of separate relationships.

It's worth saying who's behind it. Ying, BEP's Founder and CEO, brings a global network of agents and offices across Europe, Asia and LATAM, and is a successful boarding school proprietor in their own right. John, Head of Partnerships, is an experienced international pupil and agency recruiter who knows this side of the work inside out.

The tagline is “your always-on international enrolment office”. The line that matters more is this: the model is built to bring down the cost of running your international recruitment function while guaranteeing a wider pool of right-fit agents and new enquiries.

Sounds too good to be true? I'd want proof too.

Which is why BEP starts with a no-cost, no-obligation audit of your current international coverage: your agents, your process and where your pupils are coming from, set against the markets and pupil profile you want. It's carried out under an NDA, with a written undertaking not to approach or work around any agent it sees. It's diagnostic, so where your setup is already strong, they'll tell you.

I've attached the Founding School Partner prospectus, which should answer a good deal up front, but the best next step would be a short call between your team and the BEP team.

BEP isn't interested in schools chasing numbers for their own sake. It wants schools that are confident in who they are and what they offer, but recognise that, for whatever reason, that strength isn't translating into the international boarding numbers it should. The idea is simple: BEP plays to its enrolment strengths so you can focus on yours.

BEP will only work with a small number of schools this founding year, and we're onboarding the first now, with the focus on bedding the model in well before we add more. So there's something to be said for looking sooner rather than later.

If you'd like to line up the audit, or put any questions to us on a call or by email, just let me know. Even on its own it carries real strategic and commercial value for a board and leadership team, whatever you decide to do next.

Best wishes as always,
Andrew
